

Repatriation at the ANU Classics Museum – Ongoing opportunities and challenges

HRC Work in Progress Seminar

Dr Georgia Pike-Rowney
Friends' Lecturer and Curator of the Classics Museum

Museums across the globe are grappling with the management of historical collecting practices –and ANU is no exception. This presentation by the Curator of the ANU Classics Museum will explore the developing story of a number of international repatriation cases within the museum's collection, including to Italy and Cyprus. This evolving, long-term project will include a discussion of: the processes and people involved in repatriation case management; forging diplomatic relationships with foreign governments; community expectations and consultation; management of sensitive information; media interest and coverage; museum labelling and interpretation; and what this all means for teaching and research here at the ANU.

Speaker

Dr Georgia Pike-Rowney is the Friends' Lecturer and Curator of the Classics Museum. She is a transdisciplinary researcher and practitioner, whose work encompasses music, community outreach, classical studies, health and wellbeing, and history.
