

COVID-19, Mobility and Identity

Work in Progress Seminar

Professor Rob Cover
Visiting Fellow RMIT University

This seminar explores some of the ways in which the mobility restrictions as a population health response to the COVID-19 pandemic has had an impact can be understood from perspectives related to a disruption of subjectivity and belonging.

Drawing on work-in-progress for the forthcoming book Identity in the COVID-19 Years: Communication, Crisis and Ethics and findings from a 2021 commissioned evaluation of the Government of Victoria's COVIDSafe communication led by Rob, the seminar addresses some of the ways in which immobility, quarantine and lockdown have been unethically re-framed as 'individual' psychological harms rather than historical and ethical biopolitical health measures.
